

MY HOUSE

Now, I'm not about to go about telling people how they should live their lives. No, sir. That ain't right. Ain't none of my business anyhow. My son sent you, didn't he? You don't have to answer that. I know he did. It's touching, his concern for me. Do you have family? Good. So someday this might happen to you. Why do I have to prove to people that I can take care of myself in my own house? Why doesn't my son have to prove he can take care of himself? He's been divorced twice and has credit card debt coming out his ears. I don't see you trying to take him away.

For full monologue contact me at me@johnmcgie.com.