

WHEN YOUR ONE AND ONLY IS TWO PEOPLE

What happens when your one and only is two people? When you're in love with two people. Why not, right? It should be a good thing. Like, I'm so lucky, right? But people don't see it that way. And why not? What's the big deal? Parents that have two kids love them equally, right? It's not like you only got a certain amount of love and you have to divide it up or something. Love comes from the person you love. It's created. It's not something that's stored some place and you divvy out when you think it's right. Right? So what's the big deal? I love two people. It just happened.

For full monologue contact me at me@johnmcgie.com.